

Frans van Lent - Zip

A very precise sound inspection of the Nieuwstraat, from South to North at the start of the day at sunrise, and from North to South at the end of the day, at midnight. Anybody can join. The walks will be recorded.

Jello Reumer

(05:22) Less quiet than expected. Building up the market stalls became so loud that it shouted down the birds. The energetic start of a long day in the Nieuwstraat.

Frans van lent

(05:22) The morning walk i did together with Jello. Slowly walking, listening to all details. Sounds of the birds, some insects, and then the loud sounds of the market place. I recorded the sound of the walk. It took 13 minutes before we reached the end of the street.

(23:45) The night walk was much quicker, much louder and less concetrated. Young people were making a lot of noise on their scooters in the fountain on the Statenplein. I did this walk on my own. The motivation was not, like the morning, in the joy of listening, but more in the need to finish the work in the right way.
